

Attractive at first sight - superb to work with Packaging design We turn things inside out

The attractive packaging of the REISSER premium range arouses the interest of customers and ensures that the products will be recognized again. When your customers take these boxes to the job, they are also advertising your innovative image. The packages are printed in several languages and offer much information with their illustrations of special technical features and examples of applications. The mere appearance of this packaging will answer a great many questions and offer arguments in favour of purchasing the product. The boxes are made of strong, robust material and close securely. This means that the boxes remain useable down to the last screw.

People don't forget our packaging and the quality of the products fully live up to their expectations in practical use.
